Donald Sturge · ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR / DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SCIENCES

Target This course introduces topics of general interest and gives students a chance to express their opinions orally and in writing. Formal and informal oral expression exercises are designed to make students comfortable speaking in front of a group.

Outline Class themes include: education, morality, human rights, gender equity, politics, contemporary issues, personal experiences, social relationships.

Notice A considerable number of the marks given in this course is for participation in class. Good attendance is essential.

Goal Upon successful completion of this course, students will have experienced a course given entirely in English and will have had practice reading authentic English texts, using English in general conversation, and discussing a wide variety of topics. They will also have organized class activities and have practiced responding to queries regarding their experiences and opinions.

Schedule A series of in-class oral presentation activities provides a basic structure. Depending on class size, there may also be lectures, note-taking exercises, listening comprehension exercises and videos.

Evaluation Criteria Participation (50%) Class Presentations (30%) Oral/Written Exams (20%)

Re-evaluation No

Textbook Class materials come primarily from students. There are some handouts from the instructor.
